Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 4-5, 8, 12-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hkelifa et al., (6,260,376). Khelifa et al., disclose an air conditioning system with thermal energy storage comprising a refrigeration system including a compressor 19 for compressing the refrigerant to high-pressure gas state, a condenser 11 for condensing the refrigerant to a high-pressure liquid state, an expansion valve/unit 12 expanding the refrigerant to low-pressure liquid state, an evaporator 15 for evaporating the low-pressure liquid refrigerant to low-pressure gas state by absorbing heat, and returns the gaseous refrigerant to the compressor 19, the refrigeration system also comprises an energy storage stage reservoir 2 in parallel to the evaporator/evaporation stage 15 having a container in which a medium/water 42 is disposed in heat exchange relationship with a second refrigerant, the second refrigerant being circulated in a closed loop in heat exchange relationship with the first refrigerant, such that the first refrigerant absorbs heat from the medium through the second refrigerant during a period of a day when the compressor is in less demand, the medium being used thereafter as a heat absorber in an evaporation stage of an air conditioning cycle. See Fig. 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 6-7, 11 and 17-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gilles in view of Applicant's prior art Fig. 1A and Fig. 1B. Khalifa et al., disclose the invention substantially as claimed as stated above. However, Khalifa et al., do not disclose night and day time for the different modes of operation of the energy-storage for claims 6 and 11, the summer days capacity of the energy-storage for claim 7, and selecting the time period of a day for a first and second electricity tariff for claim 17, choosing the portion of a day for operating at a lower capacity and at a higher capacity for claim 18 and choosing a specific times for duration of specific operations for claims 19 and 20. The prior art Fig. 1A and 1B teach the above features as admitted by the applicant in description of Fig. 1a and 1b in Para [0005]. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the operation of air conditioning system of Gilles in view of the knowledge gleaned from Applicant's prior art Fig. 1A and 1B such that desired modes of operation at specific time could be provided in order to meet the above claimed features. This is supported by Khalifa et al., by disclosing, "excess cold power can be effectively stored, and recovered when required". See column 6, lines 1-13.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments, see remarks pages 6-7, filed 03/09/05, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 1, 4-8, 11-14 and 17-20 under 102 and 103 rejections have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of prior art.
